

Dear Friend:

The Corporation for Public Community
Newspapers

I would like to give you a gift: Your very own newspaper.

Board of Directors

Jim DeBree
Liz Gupton
Dale Harris
Jeff Hull
John Q. Murray
Van Wolverton
Jeanne Wolverton

I'm not talking about a single issue so that you write in the answers to the crossword puzzle, or use it as a fire starter in the wood stove on one of our cold Montana mornings.

I'm talking about running the entire community newspaper, lock, stock, and barrel. I am talking about setting the goals for the Clark Fork Chronicle.

When you run your own newspaper, you get to decide what should be on the front page, the sports pages, and the opinion pages. You decide what issues and stories should be covered, and what the editorials should say.

501(c)(3)
tax-deductible organization

In addition to our regular ongoing coverage of local government, events, people, and organizations, you can choose any long-term special projects that the newspaper should undertake.

PO Box 608
Superior, MT 59872
406-721-1129

And you can also help teach others to think critically and express their ideas as part of our public discourse.

The American newspaper has been with us since before we were a nation, and it has played an important role in safeguarding our way of life and helping us fulfill our roles as citizens. The local newspaper promotes our businesses and interests, while helping to build community.

Your completed membership form and annual fee gives you a say in managing the Clark Fork Chronicle. Won't you become a member today?

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'John Q. Murray', is written over a light pink rectangular background.

John Q. Murray
Publisher, Clark Fork Chronicle